

Content:

You are a guild member and your friend has told you to come check out the guild's website. When you first load onto the page you see a navigation bar that will jump you to each section of the site, 'Home' , 'Updates' , 'Stats', and 'Achievements'.

You create your account and sign in. The first section, Home, will display your characters image and the equipment they are currently wearing. Each piece of equipment will display the name of the piece and some minor details, along with an image of the item. At the bottom of this display will be a panel that allows the user to preview other characters in the guild, dynamically changing the character specific data on the page.

Below this section will be the 'Update' panel. This portion of the website has three articles. The first and left most article in this section will include a guild charter. This will charter will be updated based on current guild members from the game. The second and middle article will be a news article or a count down timer for the next guild event. This middle article will be good for the members to check in on what's going on in the next rolling week. The third and right most section will be a just for fun section where guild members who have submitted screenshots, one which is chosen, will be displayed as screenshots of the day with a description.

The next section will be character stats, of the currently selected character being displayed, shown in either progress percentage bars or icons and numerical values. This section will also have an option no displayed in the wireframe where the user can select a second character in the guild to compare stats. This is a unique feature of this website compared to competitor sites. The user will be able to pull up, side by side, and compare with intention to grow their character based on the information. There will also be filters added to the character lists to find highest values of a specific stat on characters. i.e. the user clicks the strength filter and the list will be organized based on highest to lowest strength values.

The final section of the website will be the currently selected character's achievement list. This will have a side navigation bar which will list the categories of achievements. When a category is selected the right panel will populate the achievements of that category. There will be indicators that detail if the achievement has been completed or not.

Functionality:

- Preview items, stats, and achievements
- Click to change themes
- Click to change characters
- Create a guild and guild name
- Add and remove users from the guild charter
- Assign ranks to guild members

Competition:

With the ever-growing competitive side to the game there have been a few add ons and websites that are using the games API to generate data on individual characters. Websites like raider.io which connect to the WoW database to pull all character information and provide a score based on progress in the game. The difference between our website this website allows for character comparison. A lot of times in game you are looking to see how you can improve and communicate with your guild on how to do so. Now in our website you will be able to do just that by pulling up two characters side by side. Long term goals would be to include a list of equipment on the characters and all equipment in the game to set goals for the player.

Estimate Costs:

- Git Pages, free for projects purpose
- Estimated costs for hosting between 100 - 300 usd depending on the hosting service.